ISDH will be seeking a vendor in the near future, through the RFP process, that will provide a user-friendly, web-based, simulation game based on a pandemic influenza scenario. The simulation will be targeted to local and state level preparedness staff and volunteers. Users will be able to select various functional roles from which to play, such as Incident Commander, medication dispenser, or public health nurse. Levels of difficulty should be incorporated as well as the ability to play the game multiple times with different events, threats, and outcomes possible. Users will access the simulation game through the Indiana Learning Content Management System, available at <http://www.inlms.com>.

ISDH looks forward to an open and productive discussion with vendors on probable specifications, requirements, and content.
